Cultivating Musicality

* Listen to Recordings: Familiarize yourself with different interpretations of the sonata. Listen to how renowned cellists approach the phrasing, dynamics, and overall mood. However, avoid simply mimicking; use these recordings as inspiration to develop your own voice. * Understand the Harmonic Structure: Even if you're not a composition student, having a basic understanding of the sonata's harmony can inform your interpretation. How do the chords move? Where are the moments of tension and resolution? * Phrase Shaping: Think of the cello line as a vocal line. Where does a phrase begin and end? What is the emotional arc of each melodic statement? Use your bow arm and vibrato to sculpt these phrases. * Dynamic Contrast: Romberg's music often relies on subtle and dramatic dynamic shifts. Practice exaggerating these contrasts at first, then refine them to create a more nuanced and believable performance.

Collaborating with the Pianist

* Rehearsal is Key: The piano part is not an afterthought. Schedule regular rehearsals with your pianist. * Listen to Each Other: Pay attention to the piano's lines, harmonies, and rhythms. Where do your parts support each other? Where do they engage in a dialogue? * Balance: Ensure the cello and piano are balanced appropriately. The cello should usually lead in terms of melody, but the piano should never be drowned out. * Agreed-Upon Tempo and Interpretation: Discuss tempo choices and any interpretive nuances you both agree upon.
