It acts as a preliminary data collection tool, ensuring that all the required fields on the actual Form I-765 are completed accurately. Failing to complete the worksheet thoroughly can lead to Requests for Evidence (RFEs), potentially delaying your application. It's crucial to remember that the worksheet itself is not submitted to USCIS. It's a tool for you to use. You'll use the information you gather and organize on the worksheet to fill out the official Form I-765. So, while you won't mail it in, its accuracy and completeness are directly reflected in the success of your submitted application.

Section 1: Information About You

This initial section focuses on your personal details. It's straightforward but requires careful attention to avoid typos or inaccuracies.

Personal Identification Details

* Alien Registration Number (A-Number): If you have been issued an A-Number (often found on previous USCIS notices or immigration documents), enter it here. This is a critical identifier for USCIS. * Social Security Number (SSN): If you have an SSN, provide it. If you don't have one and are eligible to obtain one upon approval of your employment authorization, you can indicate that here. * Name: This section requires your full legal name, exactly as it appears on your passport or other government-issued identification. Be precise with your first, middle (if applicable), and last names. * Date of Birth: Enter your date of birth in the MM/DD/YYYY format. * Country of Birth: State your country of birth. * Country of Citizenship: This refers to your nationality. * Gender: Select your gender. Pro-Tip: Double-check all spelling and dates against your passport and other official documents. Section 2: Basis of Eligibility for Employment Authorization

This is arguably the most critical section of the worksheet. It dictates why you are eligible to apply for work authorization. USCIS categorizes eligibility based on various immigration statuses and circumstances.

Understanding Eligibility Categories

The worksheet will list various categories, each corresponding to a specific eligibility criterion for Form I-765. You need to select the one that accurately describes your situation. Some common categories include: * (a)(3): Asylum Applicant: If you have filed for asylum and meet certain criteria. * (a)(5): Nonimmigrant Status: This is a broad category that often includes spouses of certain visa holders (e.g., H-4, L-2, E-2) or individuals with specific nonimmigrant statuses that allow for employment authorization. * (a)(6): Deferred Enforced Departure (DED): For individuals granted DED. * (a)(7): Temporary Protected Status (TPS): If you have TPS. * (a)(10): Removal Proceedings: For individuals in specific removal proceedings. * (a)(11): Adjustment of Status: If you have filed Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status, and are awaiting a decision. * (a)(12): DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals): For eligible DACA recipients. * (a)(17): Spouse of an E Visa Nonimmigrant: For spouses of E-1, E-2, or E-3 visa holders. * (a)(18): Spouse of an L-1 Intracompany Transferee: For spouses of L-1 visa holders. * (a)(27): Dependent Spouse of an E-1, E-2, or E-3 Treaty Trader/Investor/Specialty Occupation Employee: Similar to (a)(17) but may have specific nuances. * (a)(28): Dependent Spouse of an L-1 Intracompany Transferee: Similar to (a)(18) but may have specific nuances. * (a)(29): Dependent Spouse of a principal O-1 or P-1, P-2, or P-3 nonimmigrant: For spouses of certain O and P visa holders. * (c)(3)(A): F-1 Student Seeking OPT (Pre-Completion OPT): For F-1 students seeking OPT before graduation. * (c)(3)(B): F-1 Student Seeking OPT (Post-Completion OPT): For F-1 students seeking OPT after graduation. Filling in Your Chosen Category

Designated School Official (DSO). If you're a spouse of an E visa holder, you'll need to provide information about your spouse's visa and status. Keywords to Remember: employment authorization document (EAD card), eligibility categories, F-1 OPT, STEM OPT, H-4 EAD, L-2 EAD, asylum applicant, adjustment of status.

This section asks for information about your previous employment in the United States, if any.

Previous U.S. Employment Details

* Dates of Employment: When you worked for each employer. * Employer Name and Address: Details of your past employers. * Your Occupation: Your job title. * Reason for Termination: Why your employment ended. Be honest and accurate. USCIS uses this information to assess your work history and eligibility. If you've never worked in the U.S., you can indicate that.

Section 5: Other Information

This section might include questions about previous applications for work authorization, whether you have ever been denied employment authorization, or if you have had your immigration status denied or revoked.

Responding to Specific Questions

* Previous I-765 Applications: If you've applied for employment authorization before, you'll need to provide the dates, USCIS Service Center, and the outcome. * Denials or Revocations: Be truthful about any past denials or revocations of work authorization or immigration benefits. Hiding this information can lead to severe consequences.

This is where you attest to the truthfulness and accuracy of the information provided.

Your Commitment to Truthfulness

* Read Carefully: Ensure you understand every statement before signing. * Sign and Date: Sign and date the worksheet. This confirms your understanding and commitment. * Interpreter Information (If Applicable): If an interpreter assisted you, their information needs to be provided. * Preparer Information (If Applicable): If someone other than you or an interpreter prepared the worksheet (e.g., an attorney or accredited representative), their details must be included.

Tips for Filling Out Your Form I-765 Worksheet Effectively

* Read the Official USCIS Instructions: The worksheet is a guide, but the official Form I-765 instructions are the definitive source. It can lead to denial, deportation, and a bar from future immigration benefits. * Use Black Ink (If Filling Out Manually): If you choose to print and fill out the worksheet by hand, use black ink. However, filling it out digitally and then printing is often more legible. * Keep a Copy: Make a photocopy or save a digital copy of your completed worksheet for your own records. This will be invaluable when you transfer the information to the actual Form I-765. * Consult an Immigration Attorney or Accredited Representative: If you have any doubts or your situation is complex, it's always best to seek professional legal advice. They can ensure your application is perfect. * Understand Your Eligibility Category Deeply: This is the cornerstone of your application. Make sure you understand the requirements and documentation needed for your specific category. For example, if you're applying for H-4 EAD, you'll need specific documentation related to your spouse's H-1B status. * Proofread Meticulously: Before you use the information from the worksheet to fill out Form I-765, proofread it multiple times. Errors are common and can be easily avoided with careful review.

Connecting the Worksheet to Form I-765

For instance, the eligibility category you select on the worksheet will be the same one you select on Form I-765. Similarly, your personal details and any employer information will be directly transferred.

Common Pitfalls to Avoid

* Incorrect Eligibility Category: This is a major red flag for USCIS. Make sure you select the category that precisely matches your situation. * Missing Information: Don't leave any fields blank unless they are explicitly marked as optional or not applicable to your case. * Inconsistent Information: Ensure all names, dates, and numbers are consistent across all documents. * Failure to Sign and Date: A signed and dated application is crucial. * Not Submitting Required Supporting Documents: The worksheet helps you organize, but you must submit the correct evidence along with your Form I-765.
